

Christina M. Sauerborn

ASSOCIATE

Christina Sauerborn is an associate in the Trademark and Copyright Practice Group at Leason Ellis. Christina works on matters for individuals, small businesses, and well-established companies across a variety of industries, including consumer products, non-profit, medical devices, publishing, telecom, food and beverage, automotive, and the arts. She assists in managing global trademark portfolios, representing clients before the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, and tackling online enforcement issues, including domain names, e-commerce, and social media. Her federal litigation experience includes cases involving trademark and copyright issues related to cryptocurrency exchanges, power weightlifting clothing, and diving watches.

Christina's passion for protecting brands and creative expression is a natural extension of her lifelong interest in fine art. Christina holds a B.A. from New York University, where she studied Art and Business, and she received her J.D. from Fordham University School of Law. While in law school, she interned with Time Inc., Viacom Media Networks, and Fresh, Inc., where she advised on a variety of trademark, copyright, advertising and media law matters. Christina also served as Online Editor of the Fordham Intellectual Property, Media & Entertainment Law Journal, where she maintained the Journal's blog and hosted the Journal's weekly podcast.
